DECLARATION

Isabelle Richoz hereby declares under penalty of perjury as follows:

1. My name is Isabelle Richoz and I am an Analyst at Charles River Associates Incorporated. I received a B.A. degree with a major in Economics and a minor in Mathematics from Bryn Mawr College in May 2000. I have been employed at Charles River Associates for approximately one year.
2. This Declaration describes the calculations that I performed at the request of Counsel for News Corporation (News Corp) to determine the effect of combining News Corp's New York television stations (WWOR-TV and WNYW) and News Corp's New York newspaper (the New York Post) on concentration in the New York advertising market. I measured concentration using the Herfindahl-Hirschman Index (HHI), which is the sum of the squared market shares of each of the media firms in New York.¹ I calculated the HHI for New York assuming both that the stations and the newspaper were not under common ownership and the HHI after the "merger" of the television stations and the newspaper. I also calculated the change in the HHI that results from the combination.
3. In performing these calculations, I employed two alternative market definitions. In the first, I assumed that newspapers and broadcast television stations are not only direct competitors for the sale of advertising, but that they compete with radio stations as well. In the second, I assumed that newspapers, broadcast television stations, and radio stations also compete with local cable television systems. I calculated market shares based on estimates of the advertising revenues of firms in each of these media.
4. I obtained broadcast television station revenue data from BIA's Investing in Television Market Report 2001, First Edition. This publication lists television stations by call letters and provides information on station ownership and revenue for 2000, the latest year for which data are available. I did not include television stations for which BIA does not provide revenue information in my analysis.
5. I obtained radio station data from BIA's Investing in Radio Market Report 2001, Fourth Edition. This publication lists radio stations by call letters and provides information on station ownership and revenue for 2000, the latest year for which data are available. As in the case of television, I did not include radio stations for which BIA does not provide revenue information in my analysis.

6. I obtained newspaper data from the New York Post, which obtained the data through its subscription to the AD*Views component of Ad Spies [available through <http://adspies.com>]. This latter service reports revenues for each of the top five daily newspapers in the New York Designated Market Area for 2000.
7. I obtained cable television system advertising revenue data from Duncan's American Radio, Duncan's Radio Market Guide, June 2001. Duncan's reports a single cable television advertising revenue estimate for the entire New York market for 2000, the latest year for which data are available. I did not attempt to allocate this estimate among cable operators in the New York market but instead treated all cable television operators as a single entity. Cable television advertising revenues constitute a very small percentage of total advertising revenue for the New York market ($87 million for cable television revenue versus $4.2 billion for the entire New York market, including cable television revenue).
8. In order to calculate market shares, I combined the revenues of radio and television stations and newspapers that are under common ownership. For example, I combined the revenues of the television stations owned by ABC Inc. and the radio stations owned by ABC Radio Inc., I combined the revenues of the New York Times newspaper and the radio stations owned by the New York Times, I combined the revenues of the New York Post and News Corporation's television stations, WWOR-TV and WNYW (Fox Television), and I combined the revenues of the Viacom-owned CBS TV Stations Division and Infinity Broadcasting.
9. Table 1, which is attached to this Declaration, details all New York television and radio stations and newspapers that I used in my calculations, and the owners to which they were assigned.
10. When I define the market to include newspapers, broadcast television stations, and radio stations, the HHI in the New York advertising market is 1,076 prior to a hypothetical merger between the New York Post and WWOR-TV and WNYW.² After the "merger", where I treat the Post and the television stations as commonly owned, the HHI is 1,109, so that the "merger" results in an increase in the HHI of 33.

² Tables 2 and 3, which are attached to this Declaration, present the market shares used in these calculations and the ones reported below.

11. When I define the market to include local cable television systems as well, the HHI in the New York advertising market is 1,036 prior to a hypothetical merger between the New York Post and WWOR-TV and WNYW. After the “merger”, the HHI is 1,068, so that the “merger” results in an increase in the HHI of 32.
